CMT Expands Sales Leadership Team

Appoints Mark McKie as senior vice president of sales

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (July 12, 2010) – CMT, a trusted provider of efficient computing solutions for high-performance data management, virtualization, consolidation and infrastructure management, today announced that Mark McKie has joined the company as senior vice president of sales.

McKie brings more than 10 years of technology leadership experience to CMT. Most recently, he served as regional sales manager for the Pacific Northwest region at Symantec, a global leader in the security and storage software space, where he oversaw the sales of both enterprise and large enterprise groups for Portland, Seattle and Alaska.

“At CMT, we look for people who are driven to create momentum and I’m confident that Mark is going to do just that,” said CMT President and CEO Kurt Klein. “Mark’s leadership skills and dynamic approach will help us scale our sales efforts and better serve our customers as we broaden our technology and services footprint.”

As part of CMT’s executive management team, McKie will help drive the company’s strategic initiatives, including streamlining customer account management, aligning sales coverage, promoting customer retention, and uncovering new growth opportunities.

“CMT is known in the technology industry as a company that provides true value to each and every one of its customers,” said McKie. “I am excited to join such a strong team and help build upon the success CMT has seen over the past 26 years.”
